

Datasheet

Khafre is a one-stop document management/generation system that creates a new standard for data gathering and sharing of critical customer financials. The Khafre system creates a seamless communication conduit between service providers and end-users. Utilizing a universal and reusable data entry model allows different agents and providers on the system to share and repurpose client information, reduce user error and increase oversight and overall data quality.

With Khafre, managing files and information has never been easier. Utilizing a universal data model means that customer financials can be used and reused in a meaningful way, whether the system user is a mortgage broker, financial advisor, or law firm handling a loan modification. With scalable system permissions, multiple agents have the ability to update and reassure the homeowner of the status of their file, and what next steps they'll need to take.

"Khafre has helped us become a leader in the loss mitigation field. The ease with which the software is used allows all parties involved, from the client to in-house processing, to obtain information and start processing quickly. Khafre is an invaluable tool!"

Khafre was built to fill an enormous technology gap in the financial and distressed market sector. With loan modifications and other mortgage services at a record high, firms need to be able to handle the increased customer volume. Khafre streamlines the process from beginning to end making file handling and sharing simple.

System Requirements

Khafre requires only a Web browser to connect to the system. There's no need to install any application or plug-in. Once the account is created, administrators can quickly create file permissions and determine access based on user type.

Web Browser	Operating System
Firefox v2+ (We highly recommend Firefox 3.0 for Khafre) Internet Explorer v7+ Safari v3+ Opera v9+ Google Chrome	Windows XP or Vista Mac OS9+

How it Works

The Khafre system enables instant communication and data sharing between service providers and retail agents. This allows agents to expand their services by offering products they could not previously offer. For example, a firm that specializes in debt settlement has a customer in need of a short sale service. Rather than lose the opportunity, the debt settlement agent can provide the short sale service, meet the customer's need and earn a profit. This enables the agent to track progress and provide necessary information discreetly between the customer and the service provider, while remaining the primary contact for the customer.

Khafre can also provide a secure, private labeled, customer form, enabling the customer to input all the required financial information making data gathering a snap. Once the information is entered into the system, it can easily be reused and repurposed again and again. And with our advanced search and sort system, users can immediately find what they're looking for with a couple of clicks.

Save Time and Money

Khafre makes it easy for agents to communicate with service providers, track files, generate documents and share information. Because files are paperless, this dramatically reduces overhead and costly user error. With Khafre, contacts can be stored and managed with a click, simplifying communication between agents and providers easy. No more searching through Outlook for emails and phone numbers. Documents can be generated on the fly making file management easy and intuitive.

These features increase back office productivity by streamlining the workflow, lowering operating costs and freeing up valuable man hours giving firms both large and small the ability to bolster customer volume. How's that for a return on investment?
